DEATH CLAIMS ENOS L. WATSON

Father of Congressman James E. Watson Passed Away Today After Lingering Illness.

PRACTICED LAW FOR YEARS

Veteran Barrister Was Associated With Many Prominent Men During Public Service.

Winchester, Ind., February 26.—Enos L. Watson, father of Representative James E. Watson died at his home in this city at 7 o'clock this morning. Mr. Watson had been confined to his bed for several weeks.

Mr. Watson was born in Greene county, Ohio, December 22, 1830, and with his parents, came to Randolph county, when only two years old. At the age of seventeen he attempted to learn the trade of cabinet making in Deerfield. A distaste for the work caused him to give it up, and, on the advice of T. M. Longshore, young Watson began the study of law, and was admitted to the bar in 1856. Soon afterward he was elected prosecutor for Randolph and Jay counties, and at the expiration of two years he was re-elected, his circuit then comprising the counties of Randolph, Jay, Blackford and Delaware.

In 1860 Mr. Watson formed a partnership in the practice of law with William Peelle, which partnership was maintained until Mr. Peelle's election to the office of Secretary of State. In 1864 he formed a partnership with Judge J. J. Cheney which lasted until 1874. For the next six years he practiced law as a partner of Judge Monks, now of the Supreme court. Then he practiced with Judge Cheney again for a period of two years, and at the retirement of the latter, and for the next six years, Mr. Watson was the partner of James S. Engle. He then formed a partnership with his son, James E. Watson, and in 1892 the firm became known as Watson, Macey & Goodrich. He was later a partner of Union B. Hunt.

A widow and four sons survive. The children are: Seward S. Watson, postmaster of this city, and proprietor of the Winchester Herald; William S. Watson, rural route carrier in this county; James E. Watson, congressman and Charles L. Watson, postmaster at Perry, Okla. All the family, with the exception of James E., who is in Washington, were at Mr. Watson's bedside at the time of his death. The funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon with burial at Fountain Park cemetery.

Judge Sparks received a telegram this forenoon regarding Mr. Watson's death. Members of the bar who will go from here to attend the funeral Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock will be Judge Sparks, John A. Titsworth, Thomas M. Green and A. E. Martin. Capt. John K. Gowdy and E. B. Thomas will also attend the funeral. Mrs. James E. Watson and children will go to Winchester this evening.

JAY PRESENTS GOOD BILL

To Prevent Scraping of Country Roads During Winter.

Representative Will Jay of this county has presented a bill in the State Legislature against the scraping of roads during the winter season. This no doubt will supply a much felt want, as the farmers experience much trouble in driving over a road in the winter after the mud has been scraped up into the middle and has later frozen.

Bernard Miller Took an Overdose of Headache Powders and Was Close to Death's Door.

NOW ON ROAD TO RECOVERY

Bernard, the three and one-half-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Miller of West First street, has recovered from a sickness, caused by an accident, that nearly resulted in death. The young lad became inquisitive and opened a bottle of headache powders, taking an extra large dose. The boy took suddenly ill and it was feared for a time that he would die. Dr. J. G. Lewis and Dr. D. D. VanOsdel attended him and he is now on the road to recovery.

CARL MORRIS WINS FAME AS A SOLOIST

Former Resident of This City Receives Mention in New York Herald as Baritone.

GETS POSITION IN QUARTETTE.

The following article is clipped from the New York Herald, telling of the wonderful success of Carl Morris, who formerly resided in this city: "Members of the Electric Club were treated to an interesting musical program in the Grand Ball room of Waldorf Astoria last evening. Mr. Carl Morris was the baritone soloist. He possesses a voice of unusual quality range, and his singing of the prologue from 'Pagliacci,' and a group of songs was decidedly artistic."

Mr. Morris writes that he has been engaged as baritone soloist in the quartet of the Second Presbyterian church for the next year. This seems to be a very desirable position as there were twenty-five applicants for the place. Mr. Morris is studying with one of the best music teachers in the city, Dr. Carl Dufft.

Prohibition in Georgia.

Editor Republican:

This seems to me an opportune time for every voter to consider all sides of the liquor question. Therefore I wish to submit to you an article appearing in one of our leading medical journals (Iowa State Medical Journal), which I most heartily endorse:

One of the results of the attempted enforcement of the prohibition laws in the Southern States has, of course, been to bring into use a great number of substitutes for ordinary alcoholic beverages, most of which substitutes are worse, from a hygienic point of view, than ordinary wines, beers and spirits. Among others what is known as "near beer," said to contain only 2 per cent. alcohol, and therefore legal.

Meantime juries in Savannah refuse to convict keepers of "blind pigs," and Gov. Hoke Smith has threatened to send State troops to that place to run the liquor sellers to earth.

Following is an article from the Washington Star:

"In Georgia," said Mr. M. Block, of Macon, "there is considerable dullness in the cities, which many attribute to the passage of the prohibition law."

"I am not in the liquor business, and hence am without bias, but candidly, I do not think that prohibition has been a success in our State. The loss of revenue has been a great hardship in such towns as Atlanta, Augusta, Macon and Savannah, and, furthermore, there has been no important diminution of the evils complained of; the men who crave stimulants will always manage to get them in one way or another in spite of all the statutes that may be passed. The only difference is that in the clandestine traffic carried on to escape the penalty of breaking the law the drinking public is sure of getting the vilest and most injurious kinds of liquor. The stuff had from the blind tigers or the bootleggers would kill a mule. This semi-enforcement of prohibition is sure to cause a reaction; even now many who favored abolition of the rum business are inclined to think it would be better to substitute high license and the most stringent regulation, and so it would be no great wonder if Georgia were eventually to make an end of its prohibitive experiment."

The fact is clearly established by the history of the human race that man absolutely will have some kind of a stimulant, and that if he is denied access to any particular stimulant, he will either obtain it by stealth, or will—as is now being done in the Southern States—take to substitutes that are more injurious to his health than the stimulant which he has been forbidden by law to consume.

PHYSICIAN.

A Plea From Alabama.

Coal Fire, Ala., Feb. 23, 1909. Editor of the Republican:

Being a native of your county, having been born and raised there and making it my home for thirty-seven years and as nearly all my kinsmen live there, I naturally feel interested in the people's welfare. I see in the paper (the good old Republican) that you are to have an election on the 27th to either vote liquor out of the county or vote to keep it in. I think it is every Christian's duty to do all in his power to eradicate this evil.

I feel and know that I can speak from experience, having gone through with it in this State of Alabama, in the fall of 1907. This (Pickens) county, and several others voted on county local option and every one of them voted dry, and a little later we voted for State-wide prohibition and won. Now for the results. Our county had three saloons in it and I have seen anywhere from one to six or eight carouse around here in our little village all day of Sundays (and nearly every Sunday) beastly drunk and not fit to be seen about civilized people, and every Christmas, all through the holidays, nearly the whole country would stay drunk for a couple of weeks. Well, what has been the effect since voting out the saloons? Simply this, I have not seen a single drunken man around here since, and have only heard of two or three being around since the change was made. Last Christmas I never saw but two men that showed any signs of being intoxicated, and they were in Columbus, Miss., a city of about 15,000 people and those two are the only ones I ever saw there. By the way, Mississippi is a prohibition State now. To be sure there are some who will have it let the cost be what it will, but put it out of handy reach and they will naturally get weaned away from it.

What about the taxes? I want to say that our taxes are not one penny higher than they were before, and the State is spending more money building new school houses and other public improvements than it ever has since I have been in the South, over six years.

I was talking to one of our representative citizens of the county seat, a gentleman who has represented us in the legislative halls, and he told me that the merchants of the county seat were highly elated over the outcome of voting the county dry, as their business had greatly increased since liquor had been banished from our county, and stated that their sales had nearly doubled to what they were previously. The people are spending their money for necessities instead of spending it for liquor.

While a boy growing into young manhood, I was privileged to attend in your fair city and received my last schooling from one of your most worthy citizens, a man whom I learned to love and whose teachings I thank God are with me to this day, and whom I shall never forget to my dying day and that is Professor David Graham. While attending this school I learned more of the wickedness of a town or city than I ever learned before or since, only from what I read and am told, but this I saw myself. There were several young men and boys of your town who attended the same school and who had good parents. One, I recollect being a son of one of the leading ministers of the town at that time. This minister came to me several times to ask me if I knew where his son was, as he had not seen him for probably a day and night and I would have to tell him that he and some of his mates had lain in a box car all night drunk. What would this heartbroken father have given could he have destroyed every drop of liquor and never allowed another one made. Some of these boys reformed and made good citizens.

I want to say in conclusion that it is a grand privilege to go in our Southern cities of from ten to fifteen thousand people and never see the first sign of a drunken man, not even a negro (of which we have 10 to 1) and never smell the stifling odor of alcohol, or see the screened doors of the saloon, and see every one happy and contented; and when on our streets with our families you never fear of being accosted by some one under the influence of liquor and being slobbered on and humiliated by his silly, blubbery talk, and uncouth ways, and last of all I cannot see how you, as intelligent Christian men, can possibly do otherwise than vote Rush county dry on next Saturday, and set up a standard that no evil can possibly tear down, and that Christ, who died that we might all be saved will be proud of.

If this goes in your paper and makes but one vote, I will be very glad and feel that I have done a duty to one of the greatest and noblest causes of the age.

SCHEDULE CHANGE CRIPPLES THE MAIL

People of Mays Will File a Petition For a Change With State Railway Commission.

FEAR WILL LOSE POSTOFFICE.

The people of Mays and vicinity are very much opposed to the change in service on the Lake Erie railway and will file a petition for a change with the State Railway Commission in a few days. They will also be given a hearing by the commission at the same time, and they propose to put up some strong argument on their side of the question. One of the causes of the complaint is that the present railway schedule so cripples the mail service that fears are entertained of losing their postoffice.

SALOON IS BETTER THAN BLIND TIGER

Says Mrs. Marguerite Isabelle Rice, Who Lectured Last Night at Grand Theater.

ON BLIGHT OF PROHIBITION

Marguerite Isabelle Rice, known as the famous Broadway evangelist of New York City, who has a reputation as the "Girl Preacher," spoke to a good sized audience in the Grand theater last night on "The Blight of Prohibition." Mrs. Rice related her experiences in her travels over the United States and boasted that she had been in every State and territory in the United States with the exception of the Prohibition State of Maine. She claims to be a temperance advocate, and yet argues that the open saloon should be allowed to stand in preference to the blind tiger. The audience applauded her remarks occasionally. Mrs. Rice will speak at Milroy tonight.

DELIVERED GOOD LECTURE

Dr. Green Upon "Key to 20th Century" Last Night.

Dr. Thomas E. Green lectured at the St. Paul's M. E. church last night on the subject, "The Key to the Twentieth Century." There is one number yet remaining on the course.

THIEF ENTERED MERIDETH HOME

Robber Found Entrance Through North Window of Residence of Mr. and Mrs. Will Meredith.

DURING ABSENCE OF OWNERS

Ransacked House From Top to Bottom—Nothing Valuable Has Been Found Missing.

A bold robbery was attempted at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Meredith in North Morgan street last night with only partial success. Mr. Meredith was detained at Mays Station all night on business and his wife stayed with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Gideon Wellman, who live next door.

The thief forcibly opened the north window with a spade and entered the house sometime during the night. The house was ransacked from top to bottom, drawers, chests, boxes, and closets were opened, and everything pointed to a hasty survey. Scarcely anything in the residence was left untouched. But the remarkable thing about the whole affair is that nothing valuable has been found missing. The robber passed over clothes, chinaware, silverware, and other articles of value and did not seem to find that which he was in quest of. It so happened that Mrs. Meredith had taken her gold watch and money with her, when she went to her father's home.

Mrs. Meredith attended prayer meeting at the First Presbyterian church and on her return home noticed a suspicious looking character at the corner of Fourth and Morgan streets. She became frightened and returned to the church and was later accompanied home by Rev. Cowling. She went in and turned out the lights in her own home, locked the doors, and went to her father's house. There were no signs of robber at that time. The light were found burning this morning. It is thought that the burglary was committed by local talent, who knew that there was no one in the house. City Marshal Price was called this morning, but no trace of the thief has been found.

GOVERNOR VETOES THE BASEBALL BILL

Sends Message to the Legislature Expressing Opinion That Act is Unconstitutional.

IT MAY NOW BE KILLED

Governor Marshall late this morning sent to the legislature a veto of the Sunday baseball bill, on the ground that it is unconstitutional.

Although it requires only a simple majority to pass the bill over the veto, there is considerable doubt whether the Democrats of the House will pass it over the veto, says the Indianapolis News.

The Governor expresses the opinion that the bill would permit many other sports, such as prize fighting, racing and perhaps even gambling on Sunday.

The veto was received by a cheer in the House from the enemies of the bill.

SUSTAINED COMMITTEE

Congress Again Votes to Restrict Operations of Secret Service.

Washington, Feb. 26.—By an overwhelming vote and without party distinction the house of representatives sustained the committee on appropriations in again reporting a provision in the sundry civil appropriation bill restricting the operation of the secret service detectives of the treasury department. The president was scathingly denounced by Mr. Cook (Rep., Col.), while Mr. Smith (Rep., Iowa), a member of the appropriations committee and one of those named by the president in his message of Jan. 4 last as being responsible for the secret service limitation, seemingly employed all the invective at his command in an attack on that service. He compared the secret service detectives with "common lars," declared them to be worthless, and pointed to the assassination of President McKinley as a sample of the watchfulness and capacity of those men, one of whom, he said, stood at the president's side when he was shot down.

The conference report on the post-office appropriation bill was agreed to, and the naval bill was sent back for further conference.

The entire time of the senate was occupied with the consideration of the agricultural appropriation bill. The forestry service was again severely criticised by Senators Carter and Heyburn. Two reports will be before the senate committee on judiciary on Monday when it meets to vote on the investigation of the absorption of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company by the United States Steel corporation.

NEGRO UPLIFT MEETING

Southern Darkies Formally Join Prohibition Crusade.

Atlanta, Feb. 26.—Following the lead of the whites, the southern negroes began today a prohibition movement of their own at the first meeting of the anti-saloon convention of the negroes of the south.

During the sessions of the convention there will be addresses by leaders of the south of both races. In announcing the purpose of the convention the committee in charge said:

"We are determined to prove to our worthy white friends that we are as profoundly concerned in the great moral movement as any others. It is an opportunity for our people to give the world notice that we are on the right side of every question for the promotion of the public good."

INDIANA POLITICS

ROBERT G. TUCKER.

Indianapolis, Feb. 26.—A strenuous effort is now being made to have Governor Marshall veto the Sunday baseball bill. Some persons who have read the bill are of the opinion that it would not only permit baseball, football and other legitimate sports to be played on Sunday afternoon, but that it would permit the playing of poker, faro, craps, roulette or any other game that any kind of "sport" might wish to engage in. In other words, there are many who believe the Sunday baseball bill would enable gambling houses everywhere in the state to run between the hours of 1 and 6 o'clock on Sunday afternoons. Here is the part of the bill which it is believed would make this possible: "It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to engage in playing any game of baseball, football or other game where any fee is charged, or where any reward or prize or profit or article of value is depending on the result of such game, on the first day of the week, commonly called Sunday, between the hours of 5 a. m. and 1 p. m. * * * No statute of this state shall be construed to prevent such game or games on Sunday between the hours of 1 o'clock and 6 o'clock in the afternoon." A lawyer who read the bill after it had been passed by the senate said that this provision could be construed to mean that baseball, football or any kind of gaming might be carried on on Sunday afternoon, provided it was done 1,000 feet from a church or a hospital, as stated in the bill.

The legislature is far behind on the general appropriations bill. The failure of the ways and means committee of the house and the finance committee of the senate to get together on an amicable basis is chiefly responsible for this state of affairs, it is said. Some weeks ago harmonious relations ceased when Chairman Garrard of the ways and means committee prepared a schedule for the hearing of the representatives of the state institutions. Copies of this schedule he sent to the senate finance committee members. The latter were angered by his action, saying it was ridiculous for him to go ahead and fix the dates and hours for all such hearings without consulting the convenience of the senate committee. The breach was so widened that the senate committee refused to meet with the house committee and has been holding its own sessions to consider the appropriations asked by the institutions. It has been customary for the general appropriation bill to originate in the house. The prospects are that the first of next week will have arrived before the bill is ready. The process of picking it to pieces and putting it back together again will then be rushed. By the time the Democrats have got together on it—and no other way of doing this except by caucus has been suggested—and have sent it to the senate, the last day of the session will be dangerously near.

Among the new bills introduced in the senate was one by Senator Mattingly increasing the salaries of county officers in about thirty counties. He offered a bill some time ago applying to the officers of all the counties, but it was amended in committee so as to apply only to county commissioners. This bill will be called on third reading at an early roll call. He explained that the bill he offered was to change conditions only in the counties where it was believed that relief was badly needed.

Enos L. Watson, father of Congressman J. E. Watson, is much worse today and there is no hope for his recovery. He was taken worse yesterday and his death is expected at any time. Congressman Watson will complete his term March 4, but is expected home before then. His associates in congress have presented him a magnificent silver service of 285 pieces, costing $800, as a mark of their esteem for him, and in recognition of his services as "whip" of the house.

The house killed Representative Pierson's bill to increase the salary of county school superintendents. Representative Foor moved that the enacting clause be stricken out. Representative Gardner's bill that would have made city officials eligible to re-election was defeated. Many city officials have been here lobbying for the measure.

Representative Williams's bill requiring township assessors to take school enumeration, was advanced. He says it will have the state $75,000 a year. Representative McGinnis's bill to prohibit election betting, was reported favorably in the house. It would enable a loser to recover his money.

The house advanced a bill carrying the Democratic platform pledge to give the governor authority to appoint the state mine inspector and to provide for weekly pay days for miners.

The house Democratic caucus primary election measure, introduced by Representative Wells, was advanced to engrossment and will probably be passed today.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health is worth Saving and Some Rushville People Know How to Save it.

Many Rushville people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of ill health, but there is no use to suffer nor to remain in ill health by diseases and aches on account of weak kidneys.

Read what Rushville people say who have been cured by Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. Earnest Carpenter, 919 North Sexton street, Rushville, Ind., says: "My little boy's kidneys were weak and he could not control the secretions. This trouble had clung to him for some time and I was afraid it could not be removed, as the doctor had not succeeded in checking it. The child was very delicate, had a bad complexion and numerous other symptoms of unhealthy kidneys. I learned that Doan's Kidney Pills had cured many children of such troubles and I procured them at F. B. Johnson & Co.'s drug store. They soon checked the trouble. The child has a better appetite now, the color in his face is returning, his kidneys are becoming stronger and there is a general improvement in his condition."

CHURCH CELEBRATES

Boston, Feb. 26.—Completing a century of existence today, the famous Park Street church of this city will begin to celebrate its centennial tonight. The festivities in connection with the centennial will continue for a week.

The Park Street church is one of the most noted of American churches. It is marked as the building in which "America" was first sung in public, and it was in this church that William Lloyd Garrison, the famous abolitionist, made his first public address against slavery. The church is congregationalist in denomination and has had several famous preachers.

RIVERS STILL RISING

Flood Warnings Issued by the Weather Bureau.

Washington, Feb. 26.—Flood warnings have been issued by the weather bureau for the Ohio river from Parkersburg to Cairo, for the Mississippi river from Cairo to Helena, Ark., and for the lower Tennessee and lower Cumberland rivers. Fifty-five feet of water is expected at Cincinnati today, with possibly five feet more to come, and forty-two feet at Evansville by Tuesday of next week. The flood stage of forty-two feet is indicated at Helena by the middle of next week and thirty-eight feet at Memphis in about ten days.

More Counties Go Dry.

Indianapolis, Feb. 26.—Local option elections are being held today in Carroll and Gibson counties. A similar election will be held in Rush county tomorrow. In the local option elections yesterday, Fountain county, with 32 saloons; Fayette, 20, and Hendricks, 3, all voted "dry" by decisive majorities.

PUBLIC SENTIMENT ON THE LIQUOR QUESTION

The Drys of the County are in Error When They Say That After They Drive Out the Saloons Public Sentiment Will Drive Out the Blind Tiger—Give Us a Single Example to Prove It.

We are told by those interested in voting out the saloon that the blind tiger evil need cause us no concern, because after the blind tiger is installed, public sentiment will be aroused against it, and it will be eliminated.

The saloons have been driven out of Franklin. Has public sentiment been aroused against the blind tiger and the bootlegger, and has it eliminated these evils? Does it look like it WHEN BUT VERY RECENTLY A SHELBY COUNTY CITIZEN WHILE ATTENDING A TRIAL IN THE JOHNSON COUNTY COURT HOUSE WAS APPROACHED BY A BOOTLEGGER WHO OFFERED TO SELL HIM WHISKY? Where is the public sentiment in Franklin strong enough to keep down bootlegging, when the VERY PRECINCTS OF ITS COURT HOUSE DO NOT EVEN AWE THE BOOTLEGGERS, and when the very building in which is supposed to be enforced IS USED AS A MARKET GROUND FOR THE BOOTLEGGER IN DISPOSING OF HIS WARES?

Where is the public sentiment in Martinsville and Spencer, which W. H. Blodgett, the well known correspondent for the Indianapolis News, says are engaged in a rivalry as to which shall be called "the drunkenest town" from Indianapolis to Vincennes? Public sentiment in all these places put the saloon out of business, only to bring in the bootlegger and the blind tiger, far graver and more dangerous evils. The Ohio towns which have tried the dry plan have found that instead of the open, well-regulated saloons, they have already substituted blind tigers and the bootlegging system. Examine conditions in all of the Indiana, Ohio and Illinois cities, which have been trying to climb onto the water wagon, and see what has resulted. Take a look at the dry state of Georgia, where a United States commissioner was arrested last week on the charge of running a blind pig. Take the city of New Castle, where every druggist has been indicted for violating the liquor laws, and yet blind tigers flourish in all its evil strength.

When this campaign opened in Rush county, the claim was set forth that the county could actually be made dry. From this position the greater portion of the dry advocates HAVE BEEN DRIVEN BACK and the most of them are now admitting that bootlegging will follow. They now resort to the theory that after a while they can put the bootleggers out of business. SHOW US THE DRY COMMUNITY THAT HAS BEEN ABLE TO DO IT. Give us a practical example before you ask us to be convinced. Certainly that example will not be found in any of the so-called dry towns in Indiana, Ohio or Illinois. Certainly not in poor old Kansas infested by bootleggers and speak-easies. Certainly not in prohibition Georgia or prohibition Oklahoma, where in one city two hundred and sixty-five blind tigers have sprung up to take the place of fifty or sixty saloons. Certainly the example will not be found IN PROHIBITION MAIN, WHERE 3000 GOVERNMENT LICENSES ARE ISSUED ANNUALLY. Under the decisions of the courts, the fact that a man has a government license is not proof that he sells liquor. Neither are the government records available to prove that he has a license. Now, why on earth does he pay for a license if he does not sell under the license? Why does prohibition Maine have THREE THOUSAND operators under government liquor license if they sell no liquor in that good prohibition State? And, mind you, this number does not include the far greater number who sell without any license at all.

The experience of all communities that have driven out the saloon shows that in those communities the blind tiger and the bootlegger runs rife. And the experience of all communities shows that in the blind tiger and not the open saloon THAT TRAPS THE BOYS. The open saloon, flaunting its business, advertising itself on the public thoroughfares, offers small temptations to the boy who has been trained at home to believe that the saloon is an evil and a dangerous place. When the devil wants to get a soul, he does not appear in the robes of hell-fire and brimstone, with cloven hoof, forked tail and pronged pitchfork. Not much! To the boy raised in a temperance family, educated to know a saloon when he sees it, the PUBLIC DOOR OF A SALOON AND THE PUBLIC BAR INSIDE offers small temptation. IT IS THE BLIND TIGER THAT CATCH-

ES THE BOYS. The secret place of crime reaches out after the youth of the community because blind tigers recognize no law, moral or statutory. The bootlegger goes after the boy and from the flask carried in the pocket, the law violator sells to the youth, whom the saloon-keeper refuses, because the saloon is a public place and it is not safe to violate the law in the open light of day or amid the electric glare at night.

The boy who fears detection if he goes into the open saloon and buys A DRINK OF BEER, does not fear detection if he meets a bootlegger in the back end of a barn or down some alley, and there, free from observation, BUYS FROM HIM THE DRINK OF WHISKEY OR THE BOTTLE.

Don't you think that public sentiment has a pretty nice sized batch of blind tigers in New Castle and Spencer, and Martinsville and Franklin and various other places, which it might practice on? Let the people of these so-called temperance communities give us some demonstration of the power of public sentiment to wipe out the blind tiger, before we abolish our licensed saloons and bring the blind tiger and bootlegging system into Rush county.

Why do not our drys realize the evils of blind tigers? The answer is plain. Not using liquor themselves, they have never tried to get it while in a dry town, therefore have not found how pernicious and how widespread is this secret evil. People do not get excited over something they do not see. The public is a great deal like an ostrich in this respect. It does not see the evil at work in the center of our public square, it may think that it does not exist. THE DRY HAVE NEVER SEEN IT. BECAUSE THEY HAVE NEVER OBSERVED A SIGN BY DAY AND AN ELECTRIC DISPLAY BY NIGHT THAT WAS LABELED "BLIND TIGER," AND LIKE MANY SIN-CERE CONSCIENTIOUS BUT THOROUGHLY INNOCENT AND IMPRACTICAL MEN, THEY THINK THAT THE EVIL DOES NOT AMOUNT TO MUCH. There is where they commit a grievous error.

The contention of the drys is thoroughly illogical. Voting out the saloon in order to get blind tigers in order to arouse public sentiment to drive them out in order to get a dry county, some time in the future is the most impractical thing yet advanced. IN ORDER TO CURE WHAT THEY BELIEVE IS AN EVIL THEY WOULD CREATE A FAR WORSE EVIL IN ORDER TO GET A CHANCE TO FIGHT IT. THAT IS EXACTLY WHAT THE DRY FORCES ARE DOING—CREATING BLIND TIGERS, PUTTING A PREMIUM ON BOOTLEGGING AND SECRET CRIME. CREATING MORE DANGEROUS AND MORE DISREPUTABLE PLACES THAN THE SALOONS, DRIVING OUT OF BUSINESS MEN WHO ARE OBEYING THE LAW, AND INVITING INTO THE SAME BUSINESS MEN WHO WILL CONDUCT IT CONTRARY TO THE LAW. And they are doing this KNOWINGLY, ADMITTEDLY, and offering as an excuse the promise that at some time in the future they will arouse a public sentiment THAT WILL UNDO THE WORK THEY ARE NOW DOING. They are unchaining the wind with the calm assurance that they will, when necessary, chain the WHIRLWIND.

What we need right now is an aroused public sentiment along lines of sanity and good government and fair play and the Golden Rule, A PUBLIC SENTIMENT THAT IS COOL, REASONABLE AND PERMANENT, NOT FRENZIED, FANATICAL AND FLEETING. What we need is a public sentiment and is going steadily forward in its constructive work of getting BETTER GOVERNMENT, HOLDING TO WHAT IT HAS UNTIL IT IS IN A POSITION TO GET SOMETHING BETTER, and absolutely refusing to barter good government away for a mess of pottage offered by zealous, but unwise, reformers. What we need is a public sentiment and while finding conditions less than ideal, will refuse to take a backward step in order to get a change.

LOCAL BOWLERS ARE VICTORIOUS

The Rushville Five Won Three Out of Five Games at Connersville Last Night.

WOLCOTT ROLLED HIGH SCORE

Rushville Now Stands at the Head of the Red Line Bowling League.

BOWLING LEAGUE STANDING.

	Won	Lost	Pct
Rushville	4	2	667
Shelbyville	3	3	500
Greensburg	3	3	500
Connersville	2	4	333

The Rushville bowling team played the Connersville five last night on the Connersville alleys, and returned at a late hour with their second victory tucked under their belt. The members of the local five rolled like "fends" and at no time did they look like losers. The local team now stands at the head of the bowling league and are now more determined to carry away the "rag" at the end of the season.

It would be difficult to pick a star on the Rushville team as they all rolled good scores at some time during the series. Mert Wolcott, who is a new man on the team, carried away the honors for the highest individual score, rolling 238 in the fourth game of the series. Every man on the team reached the 200 mark and several of them passed it.

Rushville won the second, third and fourth games of the series by a comfortable margin. A series of three best out of five was played, but only the first three games will count in the average as it has been made a rule that the contestants shall play only three games. The team scores for the five games follow.

	1	2	3	4	5
Rushville	812	910	949	877	917
Connersville	840	909	849	835	931

Shelbyville and Greensburg, the other two members of the league, played at Greensburg last night and Greensburg won the game. On next Thursday, March 4, Rushville will play at Shelbyville and Connersville at Greensburg.

STAND CORRECTED.

Greensburg Graphic: The Rushville Republican quotes our rather bragging statement that the I. & C. traction line can make 37 miles in forty minutes and uses for it the laconic headline, "Just a Fair Run" whereat we hasten to assure our contemporary that we willingly, yea, even cheerfully, stand corrected.

Invitations in Verse

Burton, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben. B. Cox, entertained a number of his young friends at a six o'clock dinner yesterday evening celebrating his eleventh birthday. A clever piece of poetry, consisting of four eight-line verses, with the name of Benjamin B. Cox, signed at the bottom, was sent out as an invitation. The little rhyme is suited to local conditions and describes the life of the young lad and how the evening was spent. The poetry follows:

Now kids, I want you to be there,
'Cause we are going to have a time,
A nice six o'clock turkey dinner,
And all will be sublime.
Now all of you invited guests
Be there, and then we'll mix
Cranberry sauce and stuffin'
Strictly at the hour of six.
Then after dinner we will play
A little game called "finch."
As I am the only boy here,
You bet, I have a cinch.
I love my papa and my ma,
As they are very kind to me;
And I can hardly wait till the 25th
For that party, don't you see?
Now I have a very pretty cat,
It has ears most like a fox;
It can show you many little tricks—
His name is Fluffy Ruffles Cox.
While I am just a little boy,
Yet I am getting larger every day,
And will soon wear long trousers;
Then in the store I will have to stay.
In school I am fond of electrical work
But of course I can't tell yet,
As I am only eleven years old now,
But I like electricity, you can bet.
Now as I close my little verse—
Now kids, don't come at seven,
But get there promptly just at six,
Because I am proud that I am eleven.

CHAPTER VI THE BURELL CODE

NOT until his dying day will Burrell lose the memory of that march with Necia through the untrodden valley, and yet its incidents were never clear cut nor distinct when he looked back upon them, but blended into one dreamlike procession, as if he wandered through some calender where every image was delightfully distorted and each act deliciously unreal, yet all the sweeter from its fleeting unreality. They talked and laughed and sang with a rush of spirits as untamed as the waters in the course they followed. They wandered hand in hand into a land of illusions, where there was nothing real but love and nothing tangible but joy.

They held to the bed of the stream, for its volume was low and enabled them to ford it from bar to bar.

They had become so intimate by now as to fall into a whimsical mode of speech, and Necia reverted to a childish habit in her talk that brought many a smile to the youth's face. It had been her fancy as a little girl to speak in adjectives, ignoring many of her nouns, and its quaintness had so amused her father that on rare occasions, when the humor was on him, he also took it up. She now addressed herself to Burrell in the same manner.

"I think we are very smart to come so far," she said.

"You travel like a deer," he declared admiringly. "Why, you have tired me down." Removing his pack, he stretched his arms and shook out the ache in his shoulders.

He built a fire, then fetched a bucket of water from a rill that trickled down among the rocks near by. He made as if to prepare their meal, but she would have none of it.

"Bigs should never cook," she declared. "That work belongs to litters," then forced him to vacate her domain and turn himself to the manlier duties of chopping wood and boughs.

First, however, she showed him how to place two green foot logs upon which the teapot and the frying pan would sit without upsetting and how long she wished the sticks of cooking wood. Then she banished him, as it were, and he built a wickup of spruce tops, under the shelter of which he piled thick, fragrant billows of "Yukon feathers."

He filled his chest deeply and leaned on his ax, for he found himself shivering as if under the spell of some great expectancy.

"Your supper is getting cold," she called to him.

He took a seat beside her on a pile of boughs where the smoke was least troublesome. He had chosen a spot that was sheltered by a lichen covered ledge, and this low wall behind, with the wickup joining it, formed an inclosure that lent them a certain air of privacy. They ate ravenously and drank deep cups of the unflavored tea. By the time they were finished the night had fallen, and the air was just cool enough to make the fire agreeable. Burrell heaped on more wood and stretched out beside her.

"This day has been so wonderful," said the girl, "that I shall never go to sleep. I can't bear to end it."

"But you must be weary, little maid," he said gently. "I am."

"Wait. Let me see." She stretched her limbs and moved slightly to try her muscles. "Yes, I am very tired, but not the kind of tired that makes you want to go to bed. I want to talk, talk, talk, and not about ourselves either, but about sensibilities. Tell me about your people—your sister."

He had expected her to ask this, for the subject seemed to have an inexhaustible charm for her. She would sit rapt and motionless as long as he cared to talk of his sister, in her wide, meditative eyes the shadow of a great unvoiced longing. He told her of his father, the crotchety old soldier whose absurd sense of duty and whose elaborate southern courtesy had become a byword in the south. He told her household tales that were prized like pieces of the Burrell plate, beautiful heirlooms of sentiment that mark the honor of high blooded houses, following which there was much to recount of the Mendes, from the admiral who fought as a boy in the bay of Tripoli down to the cousin who was at Annapolis, the while his listener hung upon his words hungrily, her mind so quick in pursuit of his that it spurred him unconsciously, her great, dark eyes half closed in silent laughter or wide with wonder, and in them all the warmth of the leaping firelight, blended with the trust of a newborn virginal love.

Then he began to laugh silently. "What is it?" she said curiously. "Oh, nothing! I was just wondering what my straitlaced ancestors would say if they could see me now."

"What do you mean?" the girl asked in open eyed wonderment.

"I don't care," he went on, unheeding her question. "They did worse things in their time, from what I hear." He leaned forward to draw her to him.

"Worse things! But we are doing nothing bad," said Necia, holding him off. "There's no wrong in loving."

"Of course not," he assured her. "I am proud of it," she declared. "It is the finest thing, the greatest thing, that has ever come into my life. Why, I simply can't hold it. I want to sing it to the stars and cry it out to the whole world. Don't you?"

"I hardly think we'd better advertise," he said dryly.

"Why not?" "Well, I shouldn't care to publish the tale of this excursion of ours. Would you?"

"I don't see any reason against it. I have often taken trips with Poleon and been gone with him for days and days at a time."

"But you were not a woman then," he said softly.

"No, not until today, that's true. Dear, dear, how I did grow all of a sudden! And yet I'm just the same as I was yesterday, and I'll always be the same, just a wild little. Please don't ever let me be a big tame. I don't want to be commonplace and ordinary. I want to be natural—and good."

"You couldn't be like other women," he declared, and there was more tenderness than hunger in his tone now as she looked up at him trustfully from the shelter of his arms. "It would spoil you to grow up."

"It is so good to be alive and to love you like this!" she continued dreamily, staring into the fire. "I seem to have come out of a gloomy house into the glory of a warm spring day, for my eyes are blinded, and I can't see half the beautifuls I want to, there are so many about me."

"Those are my arms," interjected the soldier lightly in an effort to ward off her growing seriousness.

"I've never been afraid of anything, and yet I feel so safe inside them. Isn't it queer?"

The young man became conscious of a vague discomfort and realized dimly that for hours now he had been smothering with words and caresses a something that had striven with him to be heard, a something that instead of dying grew stronger the more utterly this innocent maid yielded to him. It was as if he had ridden impulse with rough spurs in a fierce desire to distance certain voices and in the first mad gallop had lost them, but now far back heard them calling again more strongly every moment. A man's honor or if old may travel feebly, but its pursuit is persistent. It was the talk about his people that had raised this uneasiness and indecision, he thought.

Why had he ever started it? "The marvelous part of it all," continued the girl, "is that it will never end. I know I shall love you always. Do you suppose I am really different from other girls?"

"Everything is different tonight—the whole world," he declared impatiently. "I've had a big handicap," she said, "but you must help me to overcome it. I want to be like your sister."

He rose and piled more wood upon the fire. What possessed the girl? It was as if she knew each cunning joint of his armor, as if she had realized her peril and had set about the awakening of his conscience deliberately and with a cautious wisdom beyond her years. Well, she had done it, and he swore to himself. Then he melted at the sight of her, crouched there against the shadows, following his every movement with her soul in her eyes, the tenderest trace of a smile upon her lips.

When she beheld him gazing at her she tilted her head sideways daintily like a little bird.

"Oh, my! What a fierce you are all at once!"

Her smile flashed up as if illumined by the leaping blaze, and he crossed quickly, kneeling beside her.

He piled up a great sweet scented couch of springy boughs and fashioned her a pillow out of a bundle of smaller ones, around which he wrapped his khaki coat; then he removed her high laced boots and, taking her tiny feet, one in the palm of either hand, bowed his head over them and kissed them with a sense of her gracious purity and his own unworthiness. He spread one of the big gray blankets over her and tucked her in, while she sighed in delightful languor, looking up at him all the time.

"I'll sit here beside you for awhile," he said. "I want to smoke a bit."

At times a great desire to feel her in his arms, to have her on his breast, surged over him, for he had lived long apart from women, and the solitude of the night seemed to mock him. He was a strong man, and in his veins ran the blood of wayward forebears who were wont to possess that which they conquered in the lists of love, mingled with which was the blood of spirited southern women who had on occasion loved not wisely, according to Kentucky rumor, but only too well. Nevertheless they were honest men and women, if over sentimental, and had transmitted to him a heritage of chivalry and a high sense of honor and courage. Her love had placed a barrier between them greater and more insurmountable than her blood.

He gently withdrew his fingers from her grasp and, seeing the other side of the wickup, covered himself over without disturbing her and fell asleep.

It was early dawn when Necia crept to him.

"I dreamed you had gone away," she said, shivering violently and drawing close. "Oh, it was a terrible awakening!"

"I was too tired to dream," he said. "So I had to come and see if you were really here."

He quickly rekindled the fire, and they made a hasty breakfast. Before the warmth of the rising sun had penetrated the cold air they had climbed the ridge and obtained a wondrous view of broken country, the hills alight with the morning rays, the valleys misty and mystical.

"I wish Stark was not one of Lee's party," he said once. "He may misunderstand our being together this way."

"But when he learns that we love each other that will explain everything."

"I am not so sure. He doesn't know you as Lee and Poleon and your father do. I think we had better say nothing at all about you and me—to any one."

They clung to the divide for several hours, then descended into the bed of a stream, which they followed until it joined a larger one a couple of miles below, and there, sheltered in a grove of whispering firs, they found Lee's cabin nestling in a narrow, forked valley.

"There's no one here," said Necia gleefully. "We've beat them in! We've beat them in!"

They had been walking rapidly since dawn, and, although Burrell's watch showed 2 o'clock, she refused to halt for lunch, declaring that the others might arrive at any moment, so down they went to the lower end of "No Creek" Lee's location, where Burrell blazed a smooth spot on the downstream side of a tree and wrote thereon at Necia's dictation. When he had finished she signed her name, and he witnessed it, then paced off 440 steps, where he squared a spruce tree, which she marked:

"I'll sit here beside you for awhile," he said.

Lower center end stake of No. 1 below discovery. NECIA GALE, Locator.

"Now you stake the one below mine," she said. "It's just as good and maybe better. Nobody can tell." But he shook his head.

"I'm not going to stake anything," said he.

"You must!" she cried quickly, the sparkle dying from her eyes. "You said you would, or I never would have brought you."

"I merely said I would come with you," he corrected. "I did not promise to take up a claim, for I don't think I ought to do so. If I were a civilian I would be different, but this is government land, and I am a part of the government, as it were. Then, too, in addition to the question of my right to do it, there would be the certainty of making enemies of your people, old 'No Creek' and the rest, and I can't

AFTER THE GRIPPE Vinol Restored This Man's Strength

"Several years ago I was attacked by a severe case of grippe, which left me with a hacking cough, soreness in my chest, and bronchitis. I took nearly every kind of cough syrup sold on the market, besides medicine given me by physicians.

I received no permanent relief until my druggist asked me to try Vinol, and after taking three bottles I was entirely cured.

I believe Vinol to be the greatest blessing ever offered to the public, as it does what is claimed for it." R. E. R. Hicks, Maplesville, Ala.

The reason Vinol cures chronic coughs, colds and pulmonary troubles is because it contains tonic iron and all the healing and body building elements of cod liver oil but no oil.

Vinol is also unexcelled as a strength builder for old people, delicate children, weak and run-down persons, and after sickness.

afford that now."

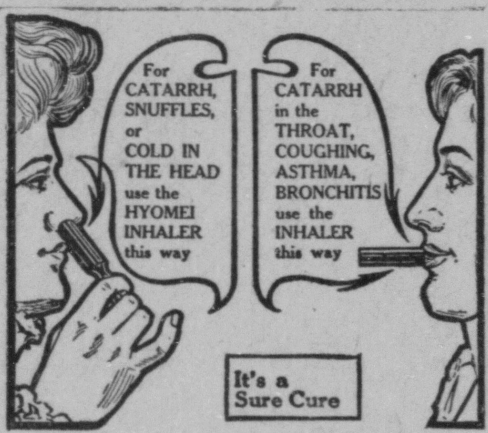

All arguments and pleading were in vain. He remained obdurate and insisted on her locating two other claims for herself, one on each of the smaller creeks where they came together above the house.

"But nobody ever stakes more than one claim on a gulch," objected the girl. "It's a custom of the miners."

"Then we'll call each one of these branches a different and separate creek," he said. "The gold was carried down one of those smaller streams and we won't take any chances of which one it was."

The following church organizations are represented in the conference: Episcopal Brotherhood of St. Andrew, Interdenominational Brotherhood of Andrew and Philip, Baptist Brotherhood, United Presbyterian Men's league, Congregational Brotherhood, Methodist Brotherhood, Men's Movement of the United Brotherhood church, Southern Presbyterian Brotherhood, League of Universalist Laymen, Canadian Presbyterian Brotherhood, Men's Movement in Christian Church and the Presbyterian Brotherhood of America.

One of the most important features of the conference will be the discussion of a proposition to arrange for co-operation of the various organizations in the larger cities as well as nationally with a view to unity and co-operation both in church work and municipal improvement. Another end suggested for the proposed federation is the raising of the male portion of the church into as important a factor in church and charitable work as have been the women of the church.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific nerve sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. With-out that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had.

For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and sallow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheer-fully recommend

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

Lesson IX.—First Quarter, For
Feb. 23, 1909.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Acts viii, 4-25.
Memory Verses 14, 15—Golden Text,
Acts viii, 6—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

The parting commission of our Lord was to go into all the world and give the good news to every creature, those thus going being assured of His presence with them all the days until the end of the age, and the special endowment of the Holy Spirit was to the end that they might be witnesses unto Christ not only in Jerusalem and Judea and Samaria, but unto the uttermost part of the earth (Matt. xxviii, 19, 20; Mark xvi, 15; Acts i, 8). Lest the apostles might think that they alone were the ones to do this God seems to have overruled even such a seemingly grievous thing as the murmuring of the Grecians to bring forth other than the apostles and send them forth—humble men who were willing to serve on a committee to supervise the distribution of alms and yet men full of wisdom and faith and of the Holy Spirit, for we cannot truly serve God even in the lowliest office except by the Holy Spirit. In our last lesson we saw the first of the seven most highly honored of God not only as a witness, but as a martyr, sealing his testimony with his blood. In today's lesson we see the second of the seven.

Phillip, so preaching Christ in Samaria that the people with one accord gave heed unto his message, and there was great joy in that city (verses 5-8). The Lord also wrought miracles of healing through Phillip, for the lame and the palsied were made whole, and demons were cast out of those possessed by them.

When we see men like Stephen and Phillip thus used by the Holy Spirit and consider that even the apostles were accounted as unlearned and ignorant men and when we hear Paul, who had some learning, having been taught by Gamaliel, renouncing all earthly words of man's wisdom lest the cross of Christ should be made of none effect (1 Cor. i, 17; ii, 4), we cannot but wonder if there is anything of God in the long years of preparation which are thought to be necessary to fit men to be preachers or missionaries. Then when we consider the discourses of Peter and Stephen and Paul in Acts ii, vii and xiii and see them to consist largely of quotations from the Scriptures centering upon a crucified and risen and returning Christ we cannot but ask in all humility and sincerity, Since the Holy Spirit thus uses His own word to accomplish the work He has been sent to do, is not the one great need more of the word of God and the one essential for minister or missionary to be filled with the word of God and the Spirit of God? It certainly does seem so to us.

In Simon the Sorcerer we see the contrast to such as Stephen and Phillip, for while they magnified the Lord Jesus he gave out that himself was some great one (verse 9), like Theudas, who boasted himself to be somebody (Acts v, 36). This is the spirit of him who will yet exalt himself above all that is called God and will attempt to show himself to be God (II Thess. ii, 4). All the world will wonder at him and will worship him and the dragon who will give him his power, all except those whose names are in the Lamb's book of life (Rev. xiii, 3, 8). We need not wonder, therefore, that all the people in Samaria for a time gave heed to Simon the Sorcerer.

See the multitudes who today are bewitched and deluded by the many strange doctrines which are being taught, and the reason is simply stated in II Thess. ii, 10, 11, for we have foreshadowings of the last days. It is a fearful thing to turn away from anything that God has written by His Spirit, but human nature seems prone to listen to the devil rather than to God, yet God is not discouraged, and there is no reason for us to be. The kingdom will come, and the name of Jesus Christ will be honored in all the world. The zeal of the Lord of Hosts will bring it to pass (Rev. xi, 15; Ps. lxxii, 11; Isa. xlii, 4; ix, 6, 7). When this Simon professed to believe in Jesus Christ there must have been great rejoicing on the part of many that such a one should have come also, but not all professors are real possessors, and in one place we read that our Lord Jesus did not believe in all who professed to believe in Him, for He knew what was in man (John ii, 23-25).

The special gift of the Holy Spirit granted to these believers through Peter and John, who had been sent up from Jerusalem, stirred Simon to desire the power of communicating this gift, and for it he offered to pay, not understanding the freeness of the redemption that is in Christ and all that it included. In this matter his heart was not right with God, and in this he had neither part nor lot (verse 21). The next two verses may indicate possibly that he was not truly saved, and verse 24 may merely show a fear of some judgment that might come upon him from the Lord. After such truths as are set forth in I Cor. iii, 15; v, 5, and the testimony of Peter that Lot was a righteous man it does not seem becoming in us to judge any one but ourselves (Rom. xiv, 13; I Cor. iv, 5). It is ours to proclaim the word of the Lord concerning Jesus Christ and His sufferings and glory in full confidence that "no word of God is void of power," that He will watch over His word.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week
Beginning Feb. 23, 1909.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.
Topic.—Home missions; present day pioneers.—Ecc. xi, 1-4.

Present day pioneer missionaries are in nowise different from those of the past. They are those who stand alone in their work. It may be on the frontier of our country or among the foreign immigrants in various parts of our country or in our cities, the islands under our control or among the exceptional populations of our land. The pioneers are the first missionaries. They sow the seed, but do not always gather it when they might expect to in more settled and permanent fields when the sowing has been of long standing. The injunctions to them, as set forth in this passage from Ecclesiastes, are most striking ones and apply to all interested in missions as well as they.

1. The command to preach the gospel regardless of no assurance of immediate returns. "Cast thy bread upon the waters, for thou shalt find it after many days." Palestine had irregular droughts and downpours of rain. When the signs of rain appeared animals trod the dried, baked banks of the streams, and then as the rain subsided seeds were cast upon the waters, sank into the now softened soil and brought forth fruit. Some seeds might be washed away and yet at some future time grow and ripen. This is the figure referred to here. Christ is the bread. He is to be proclaimed. The prospects in the pioneer's preaching may not be great, and yet he is to keep on preaching, for "after many days the results will be manifest." Results are with God, and in His time they will come, and in heaven, if not before, we may be surprised at the largeness of these results. This is true of all Christian and missionary work. "In due season we shall reap if we faint not," hence, regardless of prospects, we are "not to be weary in well doing."

2. The gospel is to be preached to all. Christ is the universal Saviour. "I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto me." "Give a portion to seven and also to eight." The number is indefinite, symbolizing that all are to be fed upon Christ, the Bread of Life—the rich, the poor, the high, the low, the crowds in the city, the few on the frontier, every nation, people, kindred and tongue, the outcast as well as the cherished child of the elegant house, those who remain at home and those who travel to sparsely settled portions of our country. And a reason is here put forth for so doing, "for thou knowest not what evil may be upon the earth" or what evil may befall you. The wheel of fortune turns rapidly in this life. The rich may become poor and the poor rich. Even those who are spiritual should lift up the fallen, "considering themselves lest they also be tempted" and fall and need the help of others to lift them up. And what better claim to it can we have than that in the day of our power we have administered to others? Therefore "whatsoever ye would have men should do to you do ye even so unto them."

3. The conditions of the times are not to be considered. The man who watches the seasons too closely will not sow and therefore cannot reap. A soul may be saved at any moment. God is always ready and able to bless our labors. We are not to wait, as missionaries or as Christian workers, for the seasons to be propitious. "All seasons are Thine, O Lord," and all seasons are also ours. The gospel preached at any time will produce results. "In season and out of season" we are to sow, and "they that sow in tears shall reap in joy."

BIBLE READINGS.

Isa. xxxii, 20; Nah. i, 15; Matt. x, 42; xxviii, 19, 20; Mark xvi, 15; Acts i, 8; Rom. ix, 1-5; x, 12-15; Gal. vi, 1, 9; Rev. xxii, 17.

Correcting the Records.

Two years ago the Christian Endeavor societies in Congregational churches gained several thousand members, according to the year book statistics, and we looked in vain for any reference to this cheering fact. Last year, according to the same authority, the societies lost several thousand members, and one religious paper referred to it five times, and others have copied it with evident satisfaction. Our friends may be interested to know that the alleged loss was due to the correction of a mistake in the previous year's report and to a further mistake in this year's list by which a loss of forty was made into a loss of 204. Last year the net increase in societies of Christian Endeavor was 1,266, with nearly 50,000 members. During the summer months, when church work is almost at a standstill, over 200 new societies were organized.

AMUSEMENTS

"A Dual Life" and "A Football Fiend" are the subjects to be shown at the Vandet tonight. The first picture depicts a story taken from real life that is full of human interest and pathos. The scenes are taken from the home of a wrecked family, showing conditions that actually exist. The second subject is comic and describes the actions of a man who imagines he is a spectator at a football game. Miss Clara Gregg will sing "Sometime Ago."

"Now I'm Here I'll Stay" and "An Exacting Father-in-Law" are the titles of the subjects to be shown at the Grand theater tonight. Both pictures are comic and never fail to bring a laugh from the audience. The first shows a young married couple in a dire predicament attempting to rid their home of unwelcome visitors. In the second picture the father-in-law is the leading character instead of the mother-in-law. Miss Iva Brown will sing "It Doesn't Seem so Long Ago."
